

Social startup seeking enthusiastic innovation developer (internship)

Ziggy Mobility is a startup bringing their first product to market: the wheelchair accessory for side-by-side strolling. Ziggy is a social product with its users at the heart of its development.

Progressing from TU Delft and Erasmus MC projects, the company is now focusing on bringing Ziggy to the market. This period is exciting, varied and fulfilling, with new milestones being reached each month.

The opportunity

We have identified a new application of Ziggy within hospitals. We would like an enthusiastic intern to take the lead on investigating this new route. In essence, you will have the opportunity to develop a product and explore its market. Depending on your background and interests, you could be doing the following activities:

- Understanding the user needs through visiting hospitals
- Suggesting design changes for a new product
- Organising Ziggy trails in hospitals
- Talking with key decision makers within South Holland
- Creating a brand and identity for the new product
- Developing your network
- Attending training events

The role is flexible with room for you to make what you want of it. Ideally, you will pursue what you find interesting and enjoy taking responsibility for leading a project. There will be regular support from mentors both in and outside of the company.

Requirements – you need to be able to demonstrate all of the following:

- Be a current student – all backgrounds and education levels are welcome
- Interest in social tech/innovation/entrepreneurship
- Available to start the internship before or beginning September 2023
- Majority on-site working in Vlaardingen (part-time working from home can be discussed)

Desirable – these are not essential but if you have some, they will make your application stronger:

- Self-starter who can lead your own projects
- Strong communication skills
- Creative hobbies
